The teacher holds an important role as a talk model. Modelling occurs throughout the day and across all subjects. Through modelling, teachers can make conscious choices to support students’ oral language development, by recycling language structures and vocabulary; supporting new vocabulary in context or offering definitions for new vocabulary.

Teacher talk - Department of Education and Training

TTT often means that the teacher is giving the students information that they could be finding out for themselves, such as grammar rules, the meanings of vocabulary items and corrections. Teacher explanations alone are often tedious, full of terminology and difficult to follow. There may be no indication of whether the students have understood.
